THE CHALLENGE

Due to restricted budgets Rutland County Council found themselves with a lack of capacity in terms of workforce expertise in carrying out a number of key civil engineering projects. These projects were in danger of being out sourced to third party companies if RCC could not demonstrate they had the knowledge and expertise to complete them, a scenario that would have caused a problem for the client in retaining ongoing maintenance budgets.

OUR SOLUTION

Within the Lafarge Tarmac Contracting team that handled the maintenance contract for RCC was a qualified Civil Engineer. This individual had all of the required skills to help the client in the design stages of all the key projects required. From drainage and footways to cycle paths and bridge designs, Lafarge Tarmac were able to provide this vital resource and were also able to give expert site supervision during the implementation phase as well.
